

FTSE Custom Digital Asset Application Index

Data as at: 30th April 2024

The FTSE Custom Digital Asset Application Index was developed to measure the performance of digital assets with a primary use case as application protocols. The Index is a dynamic benchmark that reflects the evolving landscape of decentralized applications (DApps).

The FTSE Custom Digital Asset Application Index includes decentralized finance (DeFi), games, metaverse and other decentralized application digital assets that are accessible to Web3 users and allow them to interact with the applications directly. Index eligibility starts with the assets included in the FTSE Digital Asset Total Cap Index that are also classified as Application Tokens, Staking Instruments and Decentralized Autonomous Organizations as denoted in the DAR Digital Asset Industry Taxonomy. Crypto assets are further excluded to meet regional tradeability objectives. The Index is constructed to provide diverse and holistic coverage of the eligible digital assets that have met minimum market capitalization and liquidity criteria. The eligible constituents are equal weighted to achieve a more evenly distributed result. The Index is re-equal weighted monthly and rebalanced quarterly to best reflect the dynamic nature of the asset class.

In association with Digital Asset Research, FTSE Russell maintains the underlying Index data through a methodology designed to capture data from vetted exchanges to ensure the indices are suitable for passive products. The index reports price returns only and does not incorporate any network events such as forks.
