Section 4

Index methodology

4. Index methodology

4.1 Review Methodology FTSE 100 Cumulative Dividend Points Index

- 4.1.1 The index will represent the cumulative value of ordinary declared cash dividends announced and paid by the individual constituents of the underlying FTSE 100 Index, calculated in terms of index points. No adjustment for withholding taxes will be made.

4.2 Ex-dividend adjustment

- 4.2.1 The ex-dividend (XD) adjustment represents the value of dividends declared by constituent companies on the XD date expressed in index points. The XD adjustment calculated on a cumulative basis after the close of the index initiation date on 18 December 2020. XD adjustments are based on declared dividends.

The XD adjustment is calculated as follows:

$$\frac{\text{Market value of dividends}}{\text{Latest index divisor}}$$

If a company declares a dividend in a currency other than GBP, the published GBP equivalent will be used, if available prior to the XD date. If there is no GBP equivalent, the dividend will be converted to GBP using the WMR FX Benchmarks 16:00 rate the day before the stock goes XD.

4.3 Corporate actions adjustment

- 4.3.1 The index will follow the standard FTSE Russell corporate action adjustments as detailed in the following document except there will be no corrective dividend adjustment after the XD date*:

Corporate Actions and Events Guide

*For example, if a company distributing an ordinary dividend subsequently announces a retraction (i.e. dividend is no longer being paid), FTSE Russell will not apply a corrective negative adjustment.

4.4 Index calculation example

- 4.4.1 If company A and B each declared a dividend payment with an XD date of day T, the following calculation would occur to derive the XD adjustment on day T:

Company	Dividend (p)	Shares (m)	Market value (m)	Free float factor	XD adjustment (points)
A	12.56	61,443	7,717.2	1.00	1.97
B	14.00	22,579	3,161.0	1.00	0.81
Total xd adjustment for index					2.78
Index divisor = 3,918.36

The method for calculating the XD adjustment uses the divisor as at the close of business on the preceding day after implementing any capitalisation changes. Where a company has more than one line of shares included in the indices, the XD adjustment is calculated separately for each line.
