PRODUCT HIGHLIGHTS

Why you need the Russell Enhanced Indicative Review File (REIR)

Overview

Enables more accurate and efficient planning with less time and cost.

Reduces reliance on third-party data sets, manual mapping, validation, and interpretation of index rules. As a subscribing customer, REIR gives you access to a transparent, comprehensive, and consolidated overview of the annual Russell Reconstitution.

A cost saving resource that reduces research time and effort:
REIR provides you with a transparent and comprehensive data source for the Russell Reconstitution.

Transparent and Comprehensive
REIR reduces your team’s manual research efforts by providing subscribers with the reasons a security has been deemed ineligible for membership in Russell US Indexes.

Informed Data Set
Russell 3000E members and non-constituents will be populated with data points such as total shares, free float, and total/available market cap. Ineligible security types (e.g., Blank Check Companies) will be populated with the reason for their exclusion.

Relevant data on eligible US exchanges
Data within REIR will be populated for all eligible security types listed on eligible US exchanges (NASDAQ, NYSE, NYSE American, NYSE Arca and CBOE) as of the reconstitution rank date. The file will be delivered starting on the reconstitution announcement date through the reconstitution effective date. The product will update daily to account for any changes that might occur during the query period.

Russell 3000E™ Overview:
The Russell US Indexes, which include the large cap Russell 1000® Index and the small cap Russell 2000® Index, are the leading US benchmarks for institutional investors, with approximately $9.2 trillion benchmarked to the Russell US Indexes. These are reconstituted fully in June each year to ensure a true, US investable opportunity set that seeks to balance turnover. Strong governance is key. Since the beginning, we have been committed to leading governance best practices with robust, rules-driven, and relevant index construction methods.
