A trusted partner
Approximately $12.1 trillion is benchmarked to the Russell US Indexes*, which provide comprehensive representation of the US equity market and its size and style segments.

Relevant
The Russell US Indexes are modular and flexible in their design, enabling customizable asset allocation structure.

Representative
Comprehensive coverage of the SMID cap US market segment, suitable as a benchmark for actively managed investments or as the foundation of index-linked products such as mutual funds and ETFs.

Reliable
Maintained using transparent, objective rules including annual reconstitution, quarterly eligible IPO additions and daily corporate action adjustments to ensure the index remains accurately representative.

A complete view of the small-to-mid (SMID) cap segment of the US equity market.
A subset of the Russell 3000 Index, the Russell 2500 Index includes the Russell 2000 Index plus the smallest 500 mid-cap companies from the Russell 1000 Index based on a combination of their market cap and current index membership.

Russell US Indexes as of reconstitution

The Russell US Indexes are completely recalibrated each year in June during reconstitution.

This rules-based approach to capturing the US market, which defines the breaks between market capitalization segments and determines where companies fall along the growth/value spectrum, is one of the most anticipated US market events each year.

The market capitalization breakpoints for the Russell Indexes are based on new additions as of 2023 reconstitution. The market capitalization ranges used above are absolute breakpoints for new members and do not include capitalization banding. Capitalization banding involves the implementation of a ±2.5% band around certain breakpoints.
