FTSE Russell multi-asset index recalculation policy

This document sets out the FTSE Russell<sup>1</sup> Multi-Asset Index Recalculation Policy. This policy and the Recalculation Guidelines below apply only to those multi-asset indices where the relevant index ground rules and other methodology documents indicate that this policy and the guidelines apply. Multi-asset indices are generally comprised of underlying equity and fixed income indices calculated by FTSE Russell – their Recalculation Policy and Guidelines are available from the FTSE Russell website using the below links or by contacting info@ftserussell.com.

FTSE Russell makes every effort to maintain its indices to high standards. However, investors, licensees and other market participants should be aware that inaccuracies may arise in the calculation of index level and/or constituent data of underlying indices from time to time.

Where an inaccuracy is identified, FTSE Russell will follow the steps set out in the FTSE Russell Index Recalculation Guidelines – Multi-Asset Indices below when determining whether an index or index series should be recalculated and/or associated data products reissued as a result of an inaccuracy. Because of the unpredictable nature of the issues that could arise, these guidelines should not be construed as definitive rules that determine the steps FTSE Russell will take whenever an inaccuracy is identified. In addressing inaccuracies, FTSE Russell reserves the right to consult market participants, in complex cases, as to the appropriate course of action, including the decisions on whether to recalculate indices and/or reissue its associated data products.

Please note that FTSE Russell does not accept any responsibility to investors, licensees or other market participants for the accuracy of the index or its constituent data and accepts no liability for any losses, damages, claims or expenses suffered by any person as a result of any errors or inaccuracies in the compilation or calculation of the index or any constituent data, whether arising as a result of negligence or otherwise.

Table 1: FTSE Russell multi-asset index recalculation guidelines

Table 1 below sets out the general guidelines that FTSE Russell will follow when determining whether an index or index series should be recalculated and/or associated data products reissued.

In interpreting these guidelines, FTSE Russell may use expert judgement taking into account all relevant factors including, but not limited to: the asset class of the index constituents; the nature of the incident; the impact on the total return of each index; the rebalance frequency of the index; the time elapsed since the incident occurred; the implications for products known to track the index; and the impact on index users should a recalculation and/or reissue take place. Because the individual circumstances of an incident may be complex, FTSE Russell reserves the right to recalculate, or not to recalculate, an index when these general guidelines might suggest otherwise.

If a decision to recalculate an index is taken, all affected indices will also be recalculated. Following such an event, index users will be notified of the products affected through standard communication channels (including the publication of a FTSE Russell technical notice). Index values will be updated on the FTSE Russell website, and associated data products will be reissued.

Category	Example issue	Action	Index recalculation
Restatement of Underlying Index	A component fixed income, equity or cash index to a multi-asset composite is restated	Recalculate	Y
Error in Calculation of Multi-Asset Index Return	Total return or periodic returns calculated incorrectly	Recalculate	Y
	Incorrect weight applied to the return of each underlying index	Recalculate	Y

Generally, the impact will be assessed with respect to the impact on standard indices. FTSE Russell will exercise its expert judgement when determining where a custom index, an index linked to an exchange traded product, or a standard sub-index should be recalculated.
