

SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT NOTICE

001/28012026

London Stock Exchange Alternative Site Recovery (ASR) Test – Saturday 28 March 2026

The purpose of this Service Announcement is to provide customers with notification of an Alternative Site Recovery (ASR) Test for London Stock Exchange and TRADEcho scheduled for Saturday 28 March 2026. The test will include Group Ticker Plant ('GTP') market data protocol. Furthermore, Turquoise and Turquoise Europe will also be holding an ASR Test on the same weekend, details of which will be announced in a separate Turquoise Notice.

The test involves simulating a disruption to the live service serious enough to warrant a controlled shutdown of the systems at the Primary Data Centre ('PDC'), followed by subsequent recovery of systems at the Alternate Site or Secondary Data Centre ('SDC'). The aim of this exercise is for both London Stock Exchange and its customers to test the following:

- The technical process of recovery and sequence of events during this process
- The process of suspension and restoration of the market
- The communications between London Stock Exchange and customers during recovery
- The ability of customers to connect to the Alternate Site and trade as normal via their connection to the London Stock Exchange SDC
- London hosted customers are also invited to participate in the ASR test. This will simulate a local platform issue and allow customer traffic routing between our PDC and our SDC
- London Stock Exchange will undertake some intraday reference data actions which will include the suspension and/or restoration of instruments

Third party risk management is a key dimension of operational resilience within all financial organisations and is therefore an increasing area focus of their regulators. Testing the resilience of your systems at the secondary data centre helps validate your recovery strategy and allows organisations to be more agile and responsive during an operational outage. Customers are strongly recommended to make every effort to participate and test their recovery plans during a controlled test, such as that being offered by the LSEG Alternative Site Recovery test.

London Stock Exchange, TRADEcho, Turquoise, Turquoise EU and Group Ticker Plant (GTP) customers need to register their interest to attend by emailing LondonTAM@lseg.com before 6 March 2026. Only those customers who register will receive further information and the schedule of the ASR test closer to the date of the test weekend.
